Document D1 (US6237562) discloses a method for controlling the operation of an internal combustion engine that can be operated in HCCI mode or in a mode with externally supplied ignition and that is switched between these two operating modes during normal operation according to a prescribed switching process as a function of predetermined operating parameters.

The subject matter of claim 1 differs from that of document D1 in that the engine is prevented from switching into the HCCI operating mode independently of the prescribed switching process when at least one of the exceptional situations mentioned in claim 1 occurs.

During the operation of the internal combustion engine, exceptional situations can arise in which the prescribed switching process results in an impractical operating mode. In order to ensure that an unsuitable operating mode is not employed when one of the exceptional situations mentioned in claim 1 occurs, the engine is prevented from switching into the HCCI operating mode.

The search report citations do not disclose a method of this type to prevent the engine from switching into the HCCI operating mode when one of the exceptional situations mentioned in claim 1 occurs. Said documents also do not give any indication of how document D1 could be modified in order to arrive at the subject matter of claim 1.

Therefore, claim 1 satisfies the requirements of PCT Article 33(2).

Claim 2

The subject matter of dependent claim 2 defines further embodiments of the invention according to claim 1 and thus likewise satisfies the requirements of PCT Article 33(2) and (3).

Claim 3

Independent claim 3, which relates to a method for controlling the operation of an internal combustion engine, also satisfies the requirements of PCT Article 33(2) and (3).

The subject matter of claim 1 differs from the subject matter of claim 3 in that, in claim 3, the engine is forced to switch into the HCCI operating mode when exceptional situations occur.

The search report citations do not disclose a method of this type to force the engine to switch into the HCCI operating mode when one of the exceptional situations mentioned in claim 3 occurs. Said documents also do not give any indication of how document D1 could be modified in order to arrive at the subject matter of claim 3.
